GETS A GREAT WELCOME FROM HIS BROOKLYN FRIENDS. Explorer Thinks the Pole May Yet Be Reached by a Large Expedition Willing to Spend Three or More Seasons at the Work-How His Ship Was Lost-Anthony Fiala, head of the second Ziegler expedition, which failed to find the Pole, arrived yesterday aboard the White other members of his party. After ship had been crushed in the ice Mr. Fiala was rescued by William S. Champ in the relief ship Terra Nova. Mr. Fiala said that he was not disheartened by his failure and that his experience made him feel that he would have a better chance in another expedition,

"It is too much," he said, "for any one to say that he can reach the Pole. I do not say it, but I have given the subject much thought. I believe it will cost a good deal of money to equip an expedition that will have a chance of attaining good results. I believe that the best plan would be to take along an expedition of as large a number of good experienced men as possible.

The explorer should be prepared to remain in the Arctic at least three seasons, and probably four or five. The first season should be devoted to reaching a lower se, where the ship should be kept all the first summer. The rest of the season should be used in training men and dogs. One whole season devoted to this work would not be too much. In the second season the ship should be taken as far north as it is possible to establish a land base. In the meantime a second ship should be sent out to the lower headquarters to carry supplies and establish communication. "In the third season the expedition should be about ready to make its sledge journeys. It is impossible to make more than three or four miles a day over the broken ice that skirts the land for 100 miles or more. The sledge parties should be small. It is my opinion that even by this method it is impossible to reach the pole except under the most favorable conditions of ice and

In regard to his expedition, Mr. Fia'a

"We have brought back data which should be of scientific value, and have surveyed the archipelago from Crown Prince Rudolph Land to Cape Flora, discovering four new channels and three large islands. The result of this will be a new map of that portion of the polar region."

Mr. Fiala had this to say about the loss of his ship, the America, in November, 1933:

Mr. Flala had this to say about the loss of his ship, the America, in November, 1903:

"We were awakened by the thunder of the ice in motion. Great pressure ridges formed around the America, penetrating her side and tearing out her stern. Tons of ice demolished her rails and crashed on deck. She was soon in a sinking condition, and we had to abandon her. As we did so a final pressure raised her high on the ice. The house ashore was then enlarged from wreckage of the ship so'as to accommodate the entire party of thirty-nine men and the supplies. Ship's boats and coal were aledged ashore from the America with difficulty in the cold and darkness of the Arctic aledged ashore from the America with diffi-culty in the cold and darkness of the Arctio night. On the night of Jan. 22, 1994, in a heavy gale that attained a maximum of seventy-two miles, all the old ice of Teplitz Bay, with several miles of glacier face, were broken up and carried away. The explorer was greeted at the pier by half sisters, Mrs. Annie Koch and Minnie Fiela, and historother Louis.

Mr. Fiala and his party were driven to the residence of Mr. Koch, his brother-in-law, at 117 Remsen street, Brooklyn, where his mother was awaiting him. After lunch the explorer started in a coach for his home in the apartment house at 385 Cumberland street.

With great pleasure I give your Excellency the details which you are pleased to request regarding the imprisonment of Mr. William C. Albers. The gentleman, who resides in Jalapa, a town in the department of New Segovia, opposed the local authorities of that place, who desire to give effect to the return of a writ, thus committing a criminal attempt. In his excitement he preferred grave charges against the President of the Republic.

grave charges against the Fresident of the Republic.

The authorities of Jalapa, notwithstanding the resistance and the gravity of the crime committed, did not arrest Mr. Albers, but placed the acts in the knowledge of the Judge of the district. This authority commenced the corresponding criminal suit and in view of the proofs received decreed the detention of Mr. Albers and made him proceed to the headquarters of the district, where he will be tried under subjection to the laws and without partiality of any kind.

Mr. Albers has named his defender, and your Excellency may be assured that if the charges are disproved he will be put at liberty. With relation to the properties of the arrested, the President has given strict orders to the authorities of Jalapa that they shall be well quarded, and they shall lend all assistance to the wife of Mr. Albers.

These are the data which until it now it has been possible to obtain by telegraph, and by the next mail I shall have the honor to amplify them and make known to your Excellency, with documents, the incorrect proceeding of Mr. Donaldson.

RYE PASTOR IN TROUBLE. Town Stirred by Mysterious Rumors-Only

My Foolishness, Says Dominie. RYE, N. Y., Aug. 30,-Innocent interest in a number of girls of his congregation, which had caused gossip, is said to be the cause of the Rev. Howard Hand, pastor of the First Methodist Church of Rye, demanding an investigation and notifying the board of trustees of his intention to resign. The investigation will begin on the return of the presiding elder, who is now on his vacation. The pulpit will be filled next Sunday by the Rev. Wilson F. Wakefield of

The Rev. Mr. Hand is about 55 years old and married. He has four children, two of whom are married. For thirty years he has been a Methodist minister and has held important charges in Brooklyn and Connecti-

About a year ago he come to Rye from Connecticut. Everything went smoothly until the Epworth League gave a trolley ride about a month ago. Just what the minister did the members of his flock refuse to divulge, but it is said that his attention to four young girls brought about the trouble. The father of one girl called upon Mr. Hand a few nights later and asked for an explanation. It is said that the minister had a photograph of the girl which her father demanded be returned.

At his cottage at Oakland Beach to-night the Rev. Mr. Hand said:

"It was just a little bit of foolishness on my part that has led to the whole trouble. There was no harm intended, I assure you. The father of the girl who is said to have caused the disturbance and myself have patched up our differences. We have talked the matter over and he has decided that it was only foolishness on my part that has set the people to talking. We are the best of friends now. He is not behind the movement to injure my reputation."

Mrs. Hand was present at the Epworth League trolley ride and saw everything her husband did. "The foolishness he refers to," said Mrs. Hand, "was witnessed by me, and you can tell the world that it was nothing out of the way."

Mrs. Hand refused to tell just what her husband did

One of the Best Known Leather Merchants and the Owner of Elsinore.

Edward R. Ladew, son of Harvey Smith Ladew, who was one of the old time leather merchants and tanners of New York, himself one of the largest dealers in the trade, died yesterday morning at 5:25 o'clock, at Elsinore, his country home near Glen Cove, L. I. Mr. Ladew died of cirrhosis of the liver, from which he had suffered a long time.

Mr. Ladew was born in the old city of New York on Feb. 18, 1855. He was educated at Charlier Institute and Dr. Anthon's Grammar School. He entered upon his business career as an assistant to his father, obtained a practical knowledge of the leather business in the tanneries of J. B. Hoyt & Co., and became a member of the firm in 1877. The firm of Fayerweather & Ladew, at 91 Liberty street, was incorporated in 1898. In 1904 Mr. Ladew became the sole owner of the business. He owned a large belting plant at Glen Cove. a branch factory at Charlotte, N. C., and branch stores at Boston, Charlotte, Chicago, Philadelphia, Pittsburg, Newark and At-

Mr. Ladew was formerly a vice-president of the United States Leather Company. He was a director of the corporation when he died. He was also a stockholder and director of the Elk Tanning Company, comprising twenty-three tanneries in Penn-sylvania. Mr. Ladew was actively connected with the Manufacturers' Trust Company and the Bowling Green Trust Company.

Company.
On Jan. 20, 1886, Mr. Ladew married Miss Lulu Berry Wall, sister of E. Berry Wall, one time leader of Manhattan fashion. With their children, Henry S. Ladew and Elise Wall Ladew, Mrs. Ladew survives him. Other near relatives of Mr. Ladew are J. Harvey Ladew, a brother, and Mrs. J. T. Williams of Stamford, Conn., a sister. Mr. Ladew's country place. #### COMMANDER YOUNG ACCUSED.

COURT-MARTIAL ORDERED BY SECRETARY BONAPARTE.

He Disapproves the Findings of the Court of Inquiry in Not Holding Young to Some Responsibility for the Botler Explosion on the Gunboat Bennington.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30 .- Secretary of the Navy Bonaparte to-day ordered that a courtmartial be convened to try Commander Lucien Young and Ensign Charles T. Wade for neglect of duty in connection with the explosion on the gunboat Bennington in the harbor of San Diego on July 21.

The order that Ensign Wade be placed on trial was expected-the court of inquiry had so recommended. Mr. Bonaparte's decision to court-martial Commander Young comes as a great surprise. In the proceedings of the court of inquiry no mention was made of any culpability on the part of Commander Young.

On this point Secretary Bonaparte says: "Inasmuch as the court of inquiry did not express in its finding an opinion upon the conduct of Commander Lucien Young, U. S. N., commanding the United States ship Bennington, and the question of responsibility for the explosion thereon and consequent loss of life and injuries to persons and property the Department possesses. ons and property, the Department must that he was not thus responsible. After very careful consideration, this Depart-ment is compelled to disapprove this im-plied finding."

The Secretary then cites and comments upon the various provisions of the navy regulations and says: "The foregoing provisions of the regulations and the facts disclosed by the report of the court of inquiry and by the testimony and exhibits attached thereto make it the duty of the Department to require Commander Lucien attached thereto make it the duty of the Department to require Commander Lucien Young, U. S. N., to clear himself before a general court-martial, of the charge of neglect of his official duty above indicated. Such court-martial is therefore ordered, and the Judge Advocate General will prepare charges and specifications in accordance with the views of the Department herein above expressed."

ance with the views of the Department herein above expressed."

Secretary Bonaparte concurs with the finding of the court of inquiry with respect to Ensign Wade, who was in charge of the engine and fire rooms of the Bennington at the time of the accident, but he does not at the time of the accident, but he does not appear to believe that the charges made by the court against the Ensign are sufficient and he has ordered that further charges of neglect of duty be prepared.

The Secretary differs with the court in regard to the discipline and efficiency of the ship. He says that the evidence shows that the enlisted force of the engineering division had been permitted to fall into habits of laxity and inattention in the discharge of their duties, and that at least, some of this force were also imperfectly instructed regarding their duties. He adds, "In the view of the Department the evidence established, further, that certain appurtenances, to wit: the safety and sentinel valves of at least one of the boilers, were not in an efficient senune: vaives of at least one of the boilers, were not in an efficient condition at the date mentioned and had not been in such condition for a considerable time previously, and in the judgment of the Department this evidence renders the statement that the ship was in a good and efficient condition and that her boilers were in fair condition and efficient inappropriate

Secretary Bonaparte says that it gives the Department great satisfaction to approve the court's commendations of the officers of the ship and their conduct after the explosion occurred. Lieut. A. F. H. Yates receives special praise. Commander Young and Ensign Wade are included in this ap-Line officers of the navy were startled when the announcement was made that Mr. Bonaparte had taken the proceedings of the court of inquiry in hand, reviewed of the court of inquiry in hand, reviewed them and, contrary to custom, reversed the court in several instances and ordered the court-martial of the commanding officer when the court of inquiry had not held Commander Young a whit responsible. Secretary Bonaparte, the newest of all Cabinet officers, by ordering Commander Young's court-martial, has done something unusual, and is fulfilling to a greater extent than was thought probable his promise made last month in a public statement that the Bennington disaster would be investimade last month in a public statement that the Bennington disaster would be investigated thoroughly and no one would be whitewashed nor any one made a scapegoat. If the commanding officer of the Bennington was in any way culpable Mr. Bonaparte proposes to see that he is punished.

Commander Young will probably be placed under arrest at once, although it cannot be learned at the Navy Department that this is the intention of the Department or that it has been ordered. It is highly probable, however, that orders have already gone to the Pacific Coast to formally arrest the commending officer of the Department. a the commanding officer of the Bennington.
The vessel is now at the Mare Island Navy Yard, where the courts-martial of Commander Young and Ensign Wade will probably be held. The members of the courts will be designated within a few September Special. COMMENCING TO-DAY

All the Churches in New Orleans to Be Fumigated to Kill Mosquitos-City Situation Better Than That of Rural Districts-Vardaman Urges Inspection of Houses.

NEW OBLEANS. Aug. 30 .- The fever situation is still under better control in New Orleans than in the country districts. There are only 105 cases under treatment here, fewer than in the little town of Leeville. From the country come reports of sixtythree new cases and five deaths. Among the new points of infection are Houma,

No new cases are reported at Mississippi City, and it is believed to be possible to get clear of the disease there in a very short time. There are fourteen cases at Natchez. but as they are all in the same neighborhood it is hoped the disease can be wiped out there in two weeks. The Vicksburg cases caused a stir in central Mississippi and Jackson, and all the neighboring towns

Vardaman is out with a proclamation declaring that the Natchez experience shows that quarantine is not the only protection needed and that house to house inspection is necessary. He calls upon every town in Mississippi to appoint sanitary inspectors and to keep a constant lookout for cases of sickness. The Governor has tendered the use of the militia to the towns of Vicksburg, Greenville and Natchez for quarantine and sanitary service, and the

All the churches in New Orleans have been ordered to fumigate, as they are found to contain a large number of mosquitoes. This was one of the reasons for not having a public funeral for Archbishop Chapelle, it being found that the St. Louis Cathedral contained many mosquitoes, probably infected, as it is in the heart of the infected district.

The New Orleans yellow fever record is: New cases, forty-six; deaths, four.

NEW CITY FERRYBOAT HERE. The Manhattan Proves Her Stanehness in Run From Maryland.

The new municipal ferryboat Manhattan is almost as fine a storm defler as some ocean liners. She got here yesterday after a rough trip of more than 400 miles from the yards of her builders, the Maryland Steel Company of Sparrows Point, just below Baltimore, looking as fresh and new in her red paint as if she had been simply taking a trip between Staten Island and the foot of Whitehall street, where she will ply when the Staten Island ferry slips are completed.

Andrew Gray Wilson of the Maryland Steel Company came up with the Manhattan and delivered her to the Dock Department. She had a heavy swell and half a gale in the last 150 miles of her run up the coast, but she stood up like the stanchest of the twin screw coasters. Nobody need fear sailing down the bay in her even in a hurricane.
